New System for Building Permits & Development Applications

Martin County is excited to announce the use of a new land management software that will automate and manage building permits and development review applications. Martin County is tentatively scheduled to begin using the new software on Monday, February 12, 2018.

The up-to-the-minute software will track and manage all building permit and development review applications, code enforcement cases and many other types of permits, including environmental, fire and engineering permit applications.

The software will provide citizens, businesses, and visitors with access to these services online, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. It will provide easy-to-use digital submittal tools and citizen access to all applications.

Martin County is pleased to provide improved e-government services and valuable information about the community while making your connections with the County more efficient, convenient, and interactive.

Additional information regarding the new software will be posted to our website.
